For my first post on Rational Action, I'd like to offer a summary of Max Weber's classic analysis of rationality and social action in his posthumously published Economy and Society (E&S, 1922). This subject has not exactly wanted for attention. Weber's discussion is unquestionably an important reference in twentieth-century thinking about rationality, and we will no doubt have ample ...

Max Weber on Rationality in Social Action, in Sociological

Rationality is the quality or state of being rational – that is, being based on or agreeable to reason. Rationality implies the conformity of one's beliefs with one's reasons to believe, and of one's actions with one's reasons for action. "Rationality" has different specialized meanings in philosophy, economics, sociology, psychology, evolutionary biology, game theory and political science.

Rationality - Wikipedia

In sociology, social action, also known as Weberian social action, refers to an act which takes into account the actions and reactions of individuals (or 'agents'). According to Max Weber, "an Action is 'social' if the acting individual takes account of the behavior of others and is thereby oriented in its course".
