Magic Items and Detect Magic. When detect magic identifies a magic item's school of magic, this information refers to the school of the spell placed within the potion, scroll, or wand, or the prerequisite given for the item. The description of each item provides its aura strength and the school to which it belongs. If more than one spell is given as a prerequisite, use the highest-level spell.

No offense, but this just seems IMO just as ridiculous as filling out an insurers supp form. Reason being, I remember having to do this same thing, and never once when the adjuster showed up for the reinspection did he know what the supp was, nor did he have the form that I faxed listing the additional item(s).

In statistics, sampling bias is a bias in which a sample is collected in such a way that some members of the intended population are less likely to be included than others. It results in a biased sample, a non-random sample of a population (or non-human factors) in which all individuals, or instances, were not equally likely to have been selected. If this is not accounted for, results can be ...

Etymology and usage. The word fun is associated with sports, sex, entertaining media, high merriment, and amusement. Although its etymology is uncertain, it may be derived from fonne (fool) and fonnen (the one fooling the other). Its meaning in 1727 was "cheat, trick, hoax", a meaning still retained in the phrase "to make fun of".

When you are building a predictive model, you need a way to evaluate the capability of the model on unseen data. This is typically done by estimating accuracy using data that was not used to train the model such as a test set, or using cross validation.
