Teachers should be allowed to swear at school. Once you have reached a certain age (7th grade+), you hear your peers swear EVERY DAY. If a teacher is using swearing in a mean way, intending to hurt a student, then they should not. However, this applies to anything. Teachers shouldn't be prohibited from swearing, especially around students.

Should teachers be allowed to swear at school? | Debate.org

I think teachers should not be allowed to swear in class because that brings down the teacher's reputation and also the level of respect. If a student were to swear at a teacher they would not like it, so nobody should be allowed to swear in school.
